EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT

STATE HOUSE • BOSTON 02133

(617) 727-3600

WILLIAM F. WELD
GOVERNOR

ARGEO PAUL CELLUCCI
LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

Dear Reader,

You are holding a Massachusetts guide to one of the most critical emerging industries in the world.

This Massachusetts International Envirotech Industry Directory lists more than 600 Bay State companies on the cutting-edge of environmental services and engineering. These firms have pioneered work on clean air and water issues, hazardous waste disposal, recycling, and other key environmental concerns.

Massachusetts' envirotech industry has grown hand-in-hand with our state's deep concern for the environment. Our experience has proven that we can enjoy economic growth while also protecting our natural resources and quality of life.

It is our hope that this expertise can also benefit the dozens of countries around the world which are now dealing with a variety of environmental issues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "Wm Weld", written in a cursive style.

July 1, 1993

Dear Friend:

Massachusetts has a rich heritage and a strong commitment to environmental protection. As a result, businesses based on technologies and services capable of fulfilling the needs of an environmentally conscious Commonwealth have ample opportunity for advancement here. It is the stated goal of the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs to offer incentives and to foster the growth of pioneers in the environmental field.

This office is proud to present an updated version of the Environmental Business Directory as evidence of the state's dedication to the cause of environmental protection in conjunction with business development.

We are confident that the Directory will be an invaluable resource for people around the world who wish to preserve and protect our most valuable resource.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script, appearing to read "TRUDY COXE".

Trudy Coxé
Secretary

The Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and the Executive Office of Economic Affairs would like to thank Foley, Hoag & Eliot of Boston and Washington D.C., and Rackemann Environmental Services, Inc. of Boston for printing this directory.

Foley, Hoag & Eliot is a full service law firm providing business, real estate and litigation services to a broad range of companies including environmental consultants and contractors. In addition, we maintain one of the largest environmental law practices in New England serving a national and international client base. The Environmental Business Group teams its environmental, corporate and real estate attorneys to provide advice to environmental companies on a full range of matters, including public and private equity and debt financings, mergers and acquisitions, environmental contracting and other general corporate matters. We also expedite the environmental aspects of business transactions on behalf of non-environmental companies. Our Environmental Litigation Group has significant experience in Superfund, toxic tort and other environmental litigation and administrative proceedings, and provides environmental compliance counseling.

Environmental Business Council Mission Statement

The Environmental Business Council (EBC) is an association of environmental and energy firms organized to foster the development of an effective and competitive envirotech industry for the purpose of enhancing and maintaining a clean and productive environment.

The EBC provides a unique forum for environmental and energy company executives to network with each other and to meet leading members of the academic, non-profit and government communities to discuss issues of concern to the environmental industry. The membership includes equipment manufacturers, engineering and consulting firms, solid and hazardous waste management companies, remedial and emergency response contractors, law firms, environmental analytical laboratories, investment firms and lending, financial and educational institutions.

The Council provides a much needed public voice for the emerging envirotech industry. In addition, the EBC provides its members with a wide range of business development and educational services designed to keep environmental and energy companies vital and growing. The EBC companies are seeking to develop business relationships with the emerging envirotech industry in both the domestic and international marketplace.

GREEN BUSINESSES: A PROFILE OF THE MASSACHUSETTS ENVIRONMENTAL INDUSTRY

INTRODUCTION

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts has been a leader in the environmental and energy policy arena for more than a hundred years. During the last century, the Commonwealth focussed attention on the need for public open spaces by creating the Boston Common and Public Gardens, the Olmsted park systems including Boston's Emerald Necklace and metropolitan Boston's Bay Circuit parks and a network of public parks across the state. Massachusetts was among the first states to protect public health by creating public utilities to provide clean water and sanitary sewer services to urban areas. In this century, the state has taken steps to actively protect environmental resource areas such as wetlands, barrier beaches, aquifers, marine estuaries and rare and endangered species habitats. The state has pioneered programs in hazardous waste site assessment and remediation, and air and water pollution abatement. During the past few years, the state has created innovative laws and programs to encourage pollution prevention, source reduction, solid waste recycling as well as energy and water conservation.

Massachusetts is the home of many capable and creative entrepreneurs. Beginning with the Industrial Revolution and continuing through the present, Massachusetts companies have set the standard for success in many industries. The 1950's and 1960's marked the beginning of the state's high technology era with the development of the electronics industry in the Bay State. During the 1970's and 1980's, the computer industry grew rapidly, creating jobs and prosperity for many of the state's citizens. High technology companies specializing in software, biotechnology, fiber optics, and new materials have joined the ranks of computer hardware companies during the past ten years. Environmental and energy companies promise to be one of the high technology growth industries in the Commonwealth for the coming decade and beyond.

MASSACHUSETTS: A WORLD CENTER FOR ENVIRONMENTAL SERVICES AND TECHNOLOGY

Massachusetts is home to one of the largest, most diverse and competitive collections of environmental companies in the world. More than 1300 environmental and energy companies are located in Massachusetts. The combination of aggressive state environmental initiatives, and the elements needed to support entrepreneurial activity such as world class universities, a highly skilled work force, and abundant venture capital have spawned a new industry destined to become one of the state's major employers in the coming decade and into the 21st century.

In the spring of 1991, the Massachusetts Executive Office of Environmental Affairs and the Executive Office of Economic Affairs, with the assistance of Rackemann Environmental Services, Inc. of Boston, sent a survey to approximately 1300 environmental and energy companies in the Commonwealth. A total of 452 companies completed and returned the survey to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. All of the 452 companies responding to the survey are listed in this directory.

This profile describes the information provided by these companies about their products and services, sales, customers, and opportunities for growth. A data base of the information in the survey is available at the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. A report providing a more in-depth analysis of the Commonwealth's environmental industry will be released by the Executive Offices later this fall.

A LOOK AT MASSACHUSETTS COMPANIES

The Environmental Affairs/Economic Affairs environmental company survey results can be used to answer a number of basic questions about the Massachusetts environmental industry, its current status and its future potential.

What is an "environmental" company?

For the purposes of the survey, environmental companies were defined as those companies that produce or sell products or services involved with: the conservation of energy, the provision of energy from alternative sources, the conservation of natural resources or industrial materials, the reduction or prevention of pollution, the disposal or recycling of wastes and hazardous materials, the restoration of the environment and its resources, or the production of "environmentally safe" products.

Companies responding to the survey included: environmental and energy engineering and consulting firms; solid waste companies; hazardous waste handling, storage and disposal companies; environmental and energy facility development and management companies; firms involved in the manufacturing of pollution control or monitoring devices; analytic testing laboratories; site or resource remediation companies; organic farmers; law firms with environmental law practices; and financial institutions and venture capital firms which specialize in investments in environmental companies.

How many environmental companies are located in Massachusetts?

More than 1300 environmental companies have been identified in Massachusetts. Given the high rate of start-up and the current level of consolidation that is happening in the industry, it is likely that this underestimates the current number of companies in the state.

What does the corporate profile of a "typical" environmental company look like?

More than half of the firms described themselves as "exclusively" environmental companies, which provide only environmental goods or services. The remainder of companies provided environmental goods as services as a component of a larger portfolio of products. (Please see Figure 1.) More than two thirds of the companies defined themselves as service companies; 18% described themselves as manufacturing companies; and 9% were sales and distribution firms. (Please see Figure 2.)

The companies ranged widely in age, with the typical firm having been in business for less than 20 years. The total number of firms in the state has expanded greatly during the past twenty years. (Please see Figure 3.) Of the 452 companies responding to the survey, 27% had started up during the past five years. (Please see Figure 4.) Less than 20% of the total firms are subsidiaries of or affiliated with other companies.

Where are environmental companies located?

The 452 companies who responded to the survey are located in more than 150 cities and towns through out the state. The largest collection of firms is located in the greater Boston metropolitan area; with 79 firms located in Boston; 22 in Cambridge; and 14 in Waltham. (Please see Table 1 for the Massachusetts locations with the greatest concentrations of environmental companies.)

Massachusetts environmental firms also have a national presence, with companies having offices or facilities in 39 other states. (Please see Table 2 for states with large Massachusetts company presence.) Internationally, Massachusetts environmental companies can be found on six continents in 227 different locations. The largest concentration of facilities (115) is located in Europe, most notably in the United Kingdom, France and Germany. Canada is also home to a large number of Massachusetts environmental company facilities (25).

(Please see Table 3 for international locations of Massachusetts environmental companies.)

What goods and services are provided by Massachusetts environmental companies?

The Massachusetts environmental industry is very diverse. Companies provide a wide range of environmental products and services. Of the companies responding to the survey, more than 40% provided engineering and consulting services. Approximately one third of the companies were involved in environmental facility siting or development, all aspects of solid waste management from recycling to landfilling, hazardous materials activities ranging from source reduction to treatment and disposal, and wastewater treatment. Approximately 25% of the firms provided goods or services related to emissions reduction and environmental testing. Approximately 20% of the firms manufactured monitoring equipment or provided pollution monitoring services. (Please see Figure 5.)

Who purchases products from Massachusetts environmental companies?

Massachusetts environmental companies sell their products to a wide ranging customer base. More than 90% of the firms did business with other private sector firms; more than half sold products to governmental agencies; and approximately 25% had non-profit clients such as universities and hospitals. (Please see Figure 6.)

In 1990, 56% of the companies did business exclusively in Massachusetts, 39% nationally and 5% internationally. (Please see Figure 7.)

What is the economic impact of the Massachusetts environmental industry?

The 452 companies responding to the survey reported total sales of more than $6.2 billion in 1990. (Please see Figures 8 and 9.) The average sales per firm were more than $15 million while the median sales per company was slightly less than $1 million. These 452 companies employed approximately 36,500 people in 1990.

INDUSTRY TRENDS

Massachusetts environmental companies feel very bullish about their future. More than 85% of the firms responding to the survey expected to expand their operations in Massachusetts during the next five years. (Please see Figure 10.) The total sales of these firms is expected to climb to nearly $10 billion in 1993. (Please see Figures 8 and 9.) This reflects an overall industry growth rate of more than 15% per year. Similar increases in employment are expected to accompany sales growth.

Most companies felt that increased government regulation and enforcement activities as well as consumer and business attitudes were the most significant factors affecting their ability to grow. Most companies reported expectations that the demand for environmental products and services was likely to expand significantly in the coming decade.

While growth is expected in the environmental industry as a whole, some segments are expected to experience growth at a rate greater than the industry average. Those segments include firms which manufacture environmental monitoring, testing and pollution control equipment, as well as those providing services in the area of waste reduction, pollution prevention, and resource conservation.

Massachusetts firms expect to sell more of their products in national and international markets in 1993 than in 1990.
